

HOW DID THIS SNAKE GET HERE?

Discovery of this five-foot-long snake in Brant's Creek, below Knox Mountain, caused a mild flurry Tuesday. The snake, which had been dead for some time, was found by Mrs. C. J. Gauvin, Knox Mountain Road. It has since been identified as a member of the moccasin snake family common to the Mississippi area. Authorities are puzzled as to how the snake got there, and officials of a circus company state none of their "pets" are missing. Mrs. Gauvin is shown holding up the snake, while the insert picture gives an idea of the size. The snake measured 60 inches long; had a circumference of 9 1/2 inches while scales were two inches wide. Kelowna Junior Chamber of Commerce members are wondering if Jaycees in the Peach City are pulling another practical joke. Last year a dead shark was dumped on the shores of Lake Okanagan near the Aquatic. Ald. Jack Treadgold this morning quipped "The darned thing has been pickled for years."

Refugee Family Arrives On Time

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER
PENTICTON — "Everything in Canada is wonderful," said Vetroslav Baric. But the compliment should be taken with a grain of salt. He would probably have the same impression of all western countries after the experiences he's been through in his native Yugoslavia.
Baric, 25, his wife Sabina, 21, daughter Beatrice, one, and son Roberto, three, arrived here today under the sponsorship of St. Ann's Catholic parish after spending some years in a refugee camp in Italy.
This, in short, is the story he told a reporter here through an Italian interpreter:
The son of a well-to-do landowner, he was plunged into poverty when the Communists took over in Yugoslavia. They seized his father's property and jailed him. When he dared criticize the government, he went right back to jail for another three years.
Sabina's father met with a worse fate. He was beaten and killed for speaking against the government.
Vetroslav went to work in a factory as a mechanic. Soon he became known as an anti-Communist, and he decided to leave his home country.
SNEAKED OUT
He sneaked across the border into Italy, went on to France, then returned to Italy when he couldn't find a place to settle in France. The Italians put him in a refugee camp.
Twenty-seven months after his escape, he again crossed the border to Yugoslavia. Carrying their children in their arms, he and Sabina made the long walk, under the cover of the night, to the border.
Again they were lucky and made their escape.
TELEGRAM WRONG
The Barics were thought to be lost somewhere between Penticton and Montreal, but arrived on schedule.
A telegram from Montreal informed Rev. F. J. Guinland, parish priest, that the family was due Tuesday and successive delegations of welcome met all trains.
But it was found the telegram gave the wrong date and the family arrived on time after all.

WRITER SEEKS OUT PUBLIC OPINION

Amalgamation Favored—"Before It's Too Late"

This is the fourth in a series of six articles by James Roe, Vancouver newspaperman, who is writing an article on Kelowna boundary extension for Western Business and Industry magazine and who has agreed to write this series on the same subject for The Daily Courier.
By JAMES ROE
Kelowna Courier Special Writer
It takes a lot of hard-headed discussion over the back fence to bring a subject like boundary extension or amalgamation really out in the open.
I wanted to know what people who would be affected directly by amalgamation had to say about the issue. After all, citizens like them are going to make the big decision this summer—and much appears to depend on which way they go. So I asked some questions.
Here's what two Kelowna residents thought about it.
ARTHUR HUGHES-GAMES is assistant manager of Meikle's on Bernard. Art's father, W. B. Hughes-Games was mayor for five years, and was an energetic promoter of amalgamation.

over-all planning for the area unless there's one municipal authority. Without this, services don't mesh properly, and the cost of even basic urban services become prohibitive.
Art started pushing amalgamation in the Junior Chamber of Commerce six years ago, but he met solid opposition. Two years later, the Jaycees passed a unanimous vote and they began to press actively for amalgamation.
Today Art Hughes-Games is past-president of the Jaycees and an active Rotarian.
"What really disturbs me," he says, "is the present situation's effect on business. We can't attract business here unless we have the population figures to warrant it. Businessmen on the Coast and down east aren't interested in the fringe population. They want to know how many people live in the city, and we have to quote a very unrealistic figure now.
"I'm 100 per cent in favor of amalgamation—and now, before it's too late."
Mrs. T. F. McWilliams is a leading figure in Kelowna's community activities. She's president of the Kelowna Women's Council, active in the local branch of the Canadian Cancer Society and many other groups.

She makes no bones about boundary extension. "I certainly am in favor of it," she says. "The people of Kelowna surely are short-sighted if they miss this opportunity. It's infuriating to hear people complaining about higher taxes when you think of the tremendous possibilities if this whole area is developed according to one effective plan. The returns will be far more than we will be asked to pay."
And two Glenmore property-owners came out strongly for amalgamation.
Glenmore's Reeve P. R. Moubrey is a fruit grower and a director of the Cascade Cooperative Union. He's now in his fifth year as Reeve.
Reeve Moubrey is also a staunch member of the Kelowna Boundary Extension Committee, representing Glenmore.

own sewer system, and lack of a proper system will soon become a serious health problem here.
"I believe all of Glenmore will favor amalgamation. They would be very foolish not to back it. Glenmore council is for it, and I've spoken out in favor of amalgamation many, many times.
"Let's get on with it."
Dr. M. J. R. Leitch, a dentist who is president of the Central District Council of the Okanagan Boy Scouts Association and active in Kelowna's First United Church.
"My wife and I are right behind amalgamation," says Dr. Leitch. "One reason is that we have had experience of this sort of messy situation before—in the Montreal area where there are dozens of separate municipal authorities in a single urban mass.
"The possibility of connecting up with the Kelowna sewer system is a major decision factor. From the public health standpoint alone, it's essential. Amalgamation was enthusiastically favored, too, by two prop-

VOTE ON BOUNDARY EXTENSION POSTPONED TILL END OF MAY

A tentative May 11 vote on boundary extension was announced dropped Tuesday in favor of a later date.
Boundary extension committee chairman Ald. Arthur Jackson told city council he would "hesitate to set an exact date, but it will be very close to the end of May."
The change came in answer to what Ald. Jackson described a "strong feeling" in Glenmore and the city that the May 11 date didn't leave enough time for public meetings on the subject.
He said the later date will see "plenty of time for an education program."

500 ROUNDED UP Armored Cars Back Police Raid

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (CP)—South African police backed by armored cars today raided Negro townships outside Port Elizabeth and East London, rounding up 500 persons.
Two hundred police and armored cars moved in at dawn on the Duncun Village settlement outside the Indian Ocean coastal port of East London, arresting 345.
More police and troops helped by armored cars again raided two townships at Port Elizabeth and detained 140 Negroes. A police official said they were after "undesirables."
It was the second big raid on Duncun Village in three days and brought the number of arrests there since Monday to 752. In an 11-hour trial Tuesday, an East London court sentenced 271 of those arrested Monday to prison terms of various lengths.
Police said the raids are to clean out Negroes who have burned their passbooks, agitators trying to incite violation of race regulations, "loafers" and illegal residents who are not employed in East London.
BREAK BOYCOTT
The raids also were considered a government move to prevent a government move to prevent the week-long work stoppage which the outlawed African National Congress tried to launch this week. Most non-whites went to work under the watchful eyes of police Tuesday, and the boycott fizzled.

Teenagers Caught In Store After Night Looting Spree

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two Calgary teenagers went from cash register to cash register on three floors of the Hudson Bay Company department store here early today and collected $2,000 before police caught them.
Police said the boys, who stole $50 from one of their parents to get here Monday, hid in the store at closing time Tuesday.
They used wrecking bars from the hardware department to smash open every cash register on the first three floors and were preparing to go to the fourth floor when police answered a silent alarm they had tripped.
The pair, aged 15 and 16, were being held by juvenile authorities.

Mara Songsters Top CBC Show

VERNON (Staff) — The Rockin' Reimers from Mara have been named winner of the April 14 CBC-TV Talent Caravan.
The announcement was made on the national television show Tuesday night. The group was selected by popular vote.
The trio is composed of Wayne 19, Arlene 18, and Judy 15.
Their presentation of "Scarlet Ribbons" secured for the Rockin' Reimers a place in final Talent Caravan competitions.

PROMISES REDRESS

President Syngman Rhee today pledged South Korea's people redress for their "major grievances" as soon as order is restored to their riot-torn country. It was his first statement on the nine days of anti-government demonstrations culminating in riots in Seoul Tuesday in which at least 92 persons were killed. Full meaning of his remarks had yet to be determined.

Beverly Had Five Amours, Mother Brags

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Officials say they have a tape recording in which Beverly Aadland's mother boasts her daughter had affairs with two major film actors, a movie producer and two millionaires.
But, says the district attorney's office, Hollywood personalities won't be questioned about it because there's nothing to support Florence Aadland's rambling claims.
Beverly, 17, was the late Errol Flynn's final fling. She has been in custody since a young man-about-town was fatally shot in her bed. Detectives say the slaying of William Stancu, 21, was accidental.
Mrs. Aadland, 53, faces a hearing next Monday on charges she contributed to her daughter's delinquency.
Investigators made the tape recording public Tuesday. They told this story:
"Let's see," Mrs. Aadland was wired with a miniature recorder by district attorney investigators after the 26-year-old Hollywood man reported that Mrs. Aadland wanted to hire him to beat up one of Beverly's admirers.
The district attorney's office said that at one point of the hour-long recording Mrs. Aadland says her daughter loved Flynn and "still cries about him at night."

Russia Shuns Proposals As "Shopworn"

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia turned down the West's "shopworn" disarmament proposals today and said she was "not prepared to proceed to that sort of shopping."
The rejection by Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin was on nine conventional and nuclear disarmament and control measures offered by United States delegate Frederick Eaton to the 10-nation conference.
Zorin said the offer raised no enthusiasm among the five Communist delegations since the "goods we are being offered to choose from the store of the Western powers are not sufficiently attractive."
Zorin said all nine measures were provisions of control and not disarmament.

CPR May Reduce Rail Service

MONTREAL (CP) — The CPR has under active consideration reductions in its trans-continental rail service including partial or total elimination of one of its trans-continental trains, a spokesman said today.
He said the possibility of reducing or eliminating the schedule of "The Dominion" has been under constant study for about two years but that no decision has been reached.

Unemployment Climbs Near Post-War Peak

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment in Canada increased to 566,000 in mid-March, a rise of 11,000 from a month earlier, the government estimated today. This put unemployment within 21,000 of the post-war peak of 587,000 in March 1958.
The rolls of jobless in mid-March, normally the peak month for unemployment, were 41,000 above a year earlier, the government's monthly job survey reported.
The number of persons with jobs showed little change between the survey dates of Feb. 20 and March 19, rising by 5,000 to 5,608,000. But this was 110,000 higher than the 5,528,000 in mid-March, 1959.

No Mounted Policemen For Wenatchee Festival

There'll be no redcoats to impress our U.S. friends at the Wenatchee Apple Blossom Festival at the end of this month.

George Bowie was named president of the association, while Mrs. M. McKeown will act as secretary-treasurer for the coming year.

A. Robbins, Penticton, was elected vice-president of the council.

Mrs. McKeown and Mr. Bowie will also act as delegates to the provincial convention in Vancouver May 21 and 22.

"Film councils, as a unit, are holding their own in the community," a summarization of reports showed.

The association is hoping the Kelowna International Film Festival will become a Valley-wide project in future years, and an invitation to that event was extended to all the councils by the Orchard group.

scarlet-coated Mounted Policemen to attend.

Mayor R. F. Parkinson recently asked that two redecoated constables accompany the Kelowna float and Lady-of-the-Lake Kathy Hillier to the festival.

Kelowna this year is singled out as honor city at the annual Wenatchee spectacular.

Expressing his disappointment, Mayor Parkinson quipped: "That episode at Atlantic City finished that last summer."

(Much unfavorable publicity accompanied Miss Canada to the Miss America contest at the time.)

Many Worthy Causes By Teen Town Group

In appealing to the public for funds, Teen Town mayor Pat Johnston lists some of the worthy causes undertaken by the young people:

They are a perennial contributor to the March of Dimes, in aid of crippled children. This year, they raised more than $500 for that cause.

Teen Town is about 10 years old in Kelowna. Its membership has risen to close to 200.

It is organized to the point of having its own police force, to take care of those who offend against Teen Town laws. These "laws" include no drinking, no swearing, no fighting, at Teen Town functions.

What the kids do in their own time, is "their business", according to Gail McFetridge, member of the council.

But as long as they are at a Teen Town "do", they have to abide by the rules.

Offenders are taken to the adult supervisor, Gordon Smith, and warned. If they continue to "make trouble", they are evicted by Teen Town police.

Kelowna Board Of Trade To Protest High Arrow

A fiery speech by a local State Apple Blossom Festival April 29-May 1, will be staged by the board later this year.

J. G. Mervyn and secretary-manager Heatley will represent the board at the quarterly meeting April 20 in Enderbury of the Okanagan and Mainline Associated Board of Trade.

The tourist bureau will decide soon on a request by the department of education for a hall accommodate its tourist clinic here May 13 and 14.

The board gave a tongue-in-cheek answer to a request by the Vancouver Better Business Bureau for "support" (presumably financial). Ignoring the implied money aspect, the board voted to promise the Vancouver bureau to "reciprocate with information."

The hydro development on the Columbia River system, intended to store power for rising U.S. requirements, would raise the level of High Arrow Lake by 40 feet, flood 40,000 acres of land, and "destroy" 18 communities.

Prosser, in unison with the Kootenay boards, favors the alternative of a hydro project at Mica Creek. The Mica Creek plan was originally scheduled as a joint federal-provincial undertaking. However, Ottawa has withdrawn in the meantime from its offer to share costs, leaving the provincial government with the prospect of paying the entire $550,000,000 bill.

The High Arrow development would cost less than half of that. Prosser estimated the cost at $225,000,000.

Calling for "concerted action," Prosser said, "I think we have already sacrificed enough of B.C. for hydro interests."

He cited the Alcan development in Tweedsmuir Park as an example of how "one of the best vacation spots in the world" has become "a disgrace to our province."

"It's unsafe for boating, you can't fish, and it's an all-round desolate, filthy mess," Prosser said.

"I don't want to see the same thing again."

Other business dealt with by the board executive Tuesday.

The board will foot the bill for a banquet in the Aquatic May 4 concluding the eighth annual business management course sponsored by the three Okanagan boards of trade.

No Sewer... No Loan Under NHA Ruling

New NHA regulations governing construction of homes may have a far-reaching effect on this area.

GIRL CITED BY CITY FOR HER COURAGE

Marlene McCormick, the plucky teenager who Tuesday saved an infant from the icy waters of Mill Creek, will receive recognition from city council for her courage.

Council will express its admiration for her actions in a letter of recommendation of Alderman Jack Treadgold.

Marlene saved the life of two-and-a-half-year-old Brad Cruickshank who almost drowned when he fell into the creek near his home at 1761 Pandosy.

City fathers warmly commended the 16-year-old girl for her "courage and quick thinking."

Ottawa this week announced in the Bankhead-VLA district, that effective December 31, no more money will be available for home construction unless lots are on a proper sewer system.

The matter was brought to city council's attention by Ald. Arthur Jackson Tuesday evening. Mr. Jackson contended the new regulations would no doubt have a good effect on the extension of city boundaries, because people wanting to subdivide present lots after the end of this year would have to be on a sewer system.

He felt this would be particularly advantageous to the proposed boundary extension vote.

Gayland Shows Revenue Of $275,000 In 7 Years

When bustling, sprawling Gayland Shows opens here today it will mark the seventh year the carnival has wintered in the Orchard City.

And after seven years, the operators of the big show "still haven't found a better place."

"Not much is heard from or seen of the carnival during the several months the skeleton crew works in the north end of the city, repairing and polishing up the show equipment."

Several district businessmen, however, are very much aware of Gayland Shows during the winter.

In the past seven years more than $275,000 in revenue has been realized by this district.

Most of the money—$75,000 this year—is spent on maintenance and repair of equipment for the show's rides, trucks and smaller concessions.

Hotel, motel and rooming house operators as well have grown to appreciate the "carnival" business.

Carnival workers from all ten provinces and parts of the United States roll into town two weeks before opening day. All have money to spend on food and shelter locally.

It would be safe to suggest far more money is spent by the workers than is ever taken out of the city in any four-day stand.

Gayland Shows has not always been the enterprise it is today.

The operators, E. G. "Tiny" Nichols and James "Abe" Greenway have been in show business more than 25 years, starting with an operation in Brantford, Ont.

At that time they worked for a man named Eli Trepanier, who now operates a concession at Gayland Shows.

In 1948, "Tiny" and "Abe" came out of the merchant navy with capital amounting to $600.

"We only had one ferris wheel then," Tiny said, "and we made that one with a hacksaw."

With the acquisition of Midwest Shows this year, the operation is said to be one of the largest shows in Canada. Last year the Gayland units travelled more than 20,000 miles in Western Canada.

The shows, with all they bring to the city, settled here literally by accident.

In 1948, while running a much smaller show, the partners had a truck accident on the Westside Hill. They pulled into a farm in the north end of the city. "Tiny" and "Abe" liked the place, found it suitable and have wintered here ever since.

In addition to winter employment for this area, part of the proceeds realized from concessions go to the Fire Brigade and Lions Club charities.

Many people do not realize it but that accident in 1948 was a lucky stroke indeed for business in Kelowna.

Funeral services were held in Vancouver Tuesday for a well-known Kelowna man, Claud Newby late of 832 Manhattan Drive. He died April 15 in Shaughnessy Military Hospital at the age of 68.

Mr. Newby came to Kelowna with his family in 1904 from Manitoba, and attended school here. He was employed by the old firm of Crowley and Buckland, butchers, for some years, and then was with Gordon's Meat Market until he retired.

A member of the Kelowna Volunteer Fire Brigade from 1909 until 1948, he was Fire Chief from 1945 until 1948, when he resigned.

He served overseas with the heavy artillery from 1916-1918. Two brothers, Harold and Frank, and a sister (Maud) Mrs. W. M. Parker, survive in Vancouver.

Golf Club Lease Set For 9-Hole Expansion

City council has set out the terms by which it is willing to lease land to the Kelowna Golf and Country Club for expansion of the club's nine-hole course.

In a letter to club president E. T. Butler, council says it will agree to a 20-year lease subject to confirmation from the city solicitor that the city has the authority to enter such an arrangement.

All taxes on the property would be the responsibility of the golf club.

Land the CNR currently wants to acquire from the city would be exempt from the deal.

Costs of changing an access road to the cemetery to a proposed location across the lots in question would be borne by the club.

The club would bear all costs of subdivision, land registry fees, approving officer fees and legal expenses.

When the lease has expired all things not removable from the land would become the property of the city.

The club is to endeavor to buy during the term of the lease, "property of a similar acreage and similar value to the leased property."

Mayor R. F. Parkinson and all aldermen will attend part of the Wenatchee Apple Blossom Festival—and will be unable to take part in the opening of a week-long tent revival meeting here.

A delegation from the Kelowna Ministerial Association approached council Tuesday with a request that the mayor or an alderman attend the official opening of the function.

Funeral services will be held Thursday for Mrs. Barbara Hattie McLeod, who died April 17 in Kelowna General Hospital. She was 86.

Born in Winnipeg, Mrs. McLeod resided in that city until 1945, when her husband died. She moved to Victoria in 1951 and came to this district one year later.

Surviving are: three sons, Jack, Calgary; Donald, Vancouver and Maynard, in Winnipeg; two daughters, Mrs. W. Dinnie, Kelowna and Mrs. J. Stokes, Vancouver.

She also leaves 16 grand-children and seven great-grand-children.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. at Day's Chapel of Remembrance, Rev. E. Martin officiating.

Interment will be in the Kelowna Cemetery, with Day Funeral Service Ltd. in charge of arrangements.

Canadians Are Concerned About Our Defence Policy

Evidence of deep unrest among Canadians over this country's defence policy grows stronger day by day. In the Commons recently, Mr. J. M. Macdonnell, Conservative member for Toronto-Greenwood, reflected the view of many when he said that Canada should spend more on aid to underdeveloped countries and less on armaments that quickly became obsolete. Speaking in Toronto, Dr. Claude Bissell, president of the University of Toronto, pointed to the immense benefits obtainable if some of Canada's defence spending were channelled instead to education. The two men put the emphasis in different places, but the underlying theme was the same—doubts about our present defence policy. It is the same anxiety being expressed in countless speeches, letters to newspapers and all the various methods by which public opinion is expressed.

In the fiscal year that has just begun Canada is spending $1,593 billion on defence. What are we getting for it in national safety? How much of it is going to buy and maintain obsolete weapons, to pursue outdated defence concepts? Could not the same degree of national security be obtained by spending, say, half the money? These are essentially the questions Canadians are asking.

They see the obstinate way the government sticks to the highly dubious Bomarc missile which represents for Canada a total investment of about $125 million. They see Canada continuing to maintain at a cost of about $120 million a year, an air division and army brigade in Western Europe, despite the steadily declining usefulness of the force in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and despite Western Europe's growing ability to take care of itself. They saw the government scrap the Arrow program ostensibly to save $700 million, but the result was a net reduction in defence estimates of only $7 million in the first year and $87 million the second.

All of this suggests there should be a thorough debate on defence in Parliament. A policy debate must take place on the floor of the House of Commons and the proper time is when the defence department estimates come forward for approval. The great challenge here is to the Opposition, especially the Liberals. The members of this group so far this session have not been particularly effective but sitting on the Liberal benches are a number of men who held important portfolios in the former Liberal government, among them Messrs. Pearson, Martin, Chevrier, Pickersgill and Hellyer. They have been out of office less than three years. These men should be able to take the present defence estimates apart piece by piece, cull out the waste and tell Parliament and the nation why it is waste. They should be able to isolate and point out to the nation the part of the defence bill that is due solely to the spread of inflation in recent years.

Canadians have been told frequently that part of the defence bill is the price of asserting our sovereignty. Yet one wonders what defence sovereignty we are getting. Where we are not yielding it to the Americans, we are yielding it to NATO.

Parliament cannot be dissolved until Canadians are provided with answers to the many and legitimate questions they are asking about defence policy. It is the duty of the Opposition to seek these answers—and of the Government to provide them.

A Modern Version

Over in England the Rev. John Jackson, a Methodist minister of Wolverhampton, has done a little re-writing of the famous hymn "Eternal Father strong to save."

Working on the theory that if Britain could count 6,520 dead from road accidents at the end of 1959, plus 326,933 injured, while only 50 seamen perished around the British coasts, there must be need for a change, the Rev. Jackson came up with this alternative of the last verse in the old hymn. "O Trinity of love and power All travellers shield in danger's hour From selfishness and reckless speed Protect them whosoever there's need Then ever more shall rise to thee Glad hymns from land and air and sea."

Risks at sea there may be, but none half so great as the risks on the highway. Statistics demonstrate beyond doubt that there is more danger to life and limb on any main highway than there will ever be crossing the Queen Charlotte Straits on a stormy night.

The danger comes from men and women who take the wheel of a lethal instrument weighing around a ton and hurtle it along highways without due consideration for what they are doing or other people who share the road.

Our highways these days are crowded with people who insist that alcohol and gasoline mix, who are completely selfish in their attitude, and who approach lunacy when placed behind the wheel of a modern motor vehicle.

If a few more ministers take note of the Rev. Jackson's version of "Eternal Father" and stress that the chief danger in this life lies not in "the restless wave," "the mighty ocean deep," or "the water dark and rude" we might even trim our Canadian road death toll by substantial numbers.

Kashmir Dispute Looms Large For Pakistan, India

KARACHI (CP) — Smoothing over one big hump on the road to neighboring relations, Pakistan and India are expected soon to sign a $1,000,000,000 treaty dividing the life-giving waters of the Indus Basin.

But the treaty will end one major dispute only to find the two countries confronting as bitterly as ever the question of Kashmir, the disputed territory on their northern frontiers.

In Pakistan's view, the waters treaty makes a mockery of the festering dispute over strategically and economically important Kashmir even more urgent than before.

FERTILIZING WATERS
The six rivers of the Indus complex fertilize most of West Pakistan and much of western India. Pakistan wants control of the headwaters of the three western rivers allocated to feed the Pakistan canal system under the proposed treaty arrangement sponsored by the World Bank. These are in Kashmir, most of which is controlled by India under the cease-fire which ended Indian-Pakistan fighting Jan. 1, 1949. A plebiscite proposed by the United Nations has never taken place and an uneasy peace has prevailed since the fighting, with its bitter religious implications between Hindu and Moslem, broke out after Britain withdrew from the Indian subcontinent 13 years ago.

Under the water treaty, irrigation works in Pakistan will be developed over a 10-year period to replace the water hitherto supplied to Pakistan from the three eastern rivers, which then will be reserved for India.

The Indian government announced two years ago that it planned to divert to its own use the present water supply from the eastern rivers by 1962. Hitherto the waters have been farmed out under a series of temporary agreements, which it now is proposed to renew until the replacement works are completed.

Pakistan President Mohammed Ayub Khan has declared that a Kashmir settlement is a "matter of life and death" for Pakistan and without it there can be no confidence between the two countries.

MONEY TROUBLES

Both sides were reminded of the cold war that exists between their countries by the recent failure of their finance ministers to settle financial disputes. Pakistan's Mohammad Shoaib and India's Morarji Deas broke off talks last month with assurances that they will try again soon, but the gap between their views on partitioning of assets and liabilities of the former British Indian government is evidently still wide.

Deas bluntly disputed the Pakistan view that mutual trust could only be established by a solution of the Kashmir problem. This has confirmed the Pakistani belief that Indian Prime Minister Nehru, himself a native of Kashmir, still is "dragging his feet" over this problem.

Pakistan is anxious to maintain the impetus given to moves for improvement of Indian-Pakistan relations by the Chinese negotiations on the Indian and Kashmir borders last year.

END BORDER CLASHES

India and Pakistan already have settled some troublesome differences in the new and more favorable climate. Agreement on SA $150 per year, $750 for 3 months. Outside B.C. and favorable climate. Agreement on SA $150 per year, $750 for 3 months. Outside B.C. and favorable climate. Agreement on SA $150 per year, $750 for 3 months. Outside B.C. and favorable climate.

and sporadic clashes between border patrols virtually have ceased.

The new trade agreement promises an increased flow of goods across the frontiers, even though it still scratches only the surface of the trade liberalization problem.

But Ayub has complained that Nehru failed to respond adequately to the initiative he took last September when he flew to New Delhi for talks with the Indian prime minister.

In Ayub's opinion, the strategic situation on the northern frontiers of the two countries calls urgently for an Indian-Pakistan rapprochement in self defence.

Ayub contends that the mere establishment of mutual confidence would release for external defence Indian and Pakistani forces now facing each other, particularly around Kashmir.

INDIA WARY

Observers here say India has been cool towards implementing a previously agreed plebiscite in Kashmir—the majority of whose population is Moslem—partly on the ground that by joining military pacts Pakistan changed the pattern of politics in the region and brought the East-West cold war to India's frontier.

India now claims that the original instrument of accession signed by the Hindu rajah of Kashmir at the time of partition has been reinforced by elections in Kashmir, which have brought to power a pro-Indian government. Thus the people of Kashmir already have chosen their destiny, India argues.

Previous Pakistani governments insisted rigidly on the implementation of the plebiscite plan accepted by both countries at the United Nations. They claimed that the verdict in the Kashmir elections was extracted at the point of the bayonet.

But Ayub's 16-month-old government has indicated its readiness to consider alternatives without suggesting what they might be. The only solution ruled out is acceptance of the present division of Kashmir along the cease-fire line accepted by the two countries as a temporary boundary.

Production of synthetic fibres in Britain reached a record of more than 50,000,000 pounds in the first two months of 1960.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

HIGHER TAXES

The Editor,
The Kelowna Courier.

Dear Sir:
Sprawl and 'Spit are ugly words. However, personally, I prefer the fresh air of sprawl to the spit of "Cheek by Jowl Living."

Your special correspondent, James Roe, whom one would assume is also in the employ of the eminent Professor Oberlander and the unwilling employ of the city of Kelowna taxpayers, appears unaware in his medical diagnosis that contamination also results from too congested living.

Looking at the question of boundary extension from a purely selfish point of view, has the following occurred to you as you ponder for editorial thoughts? When households are forced to meet higher taxes there are two avenues of action open: (a) Move to lower tax area; (b) pay the taxes and economize.

(a) When one moves it entails building or buying. If either, one is far too busy to spend time in reading the paper and TV carry good news programs therefore the result is subsequent Courier cancellation.

(b) Pay the taxes and economize. One of the first economies will of course be the cancellation of your paper following by reduction in insurance, less car operation, less paint purchases and application and spaghetti in lieu of beef. When people really "dig their toes in" there is no limit to what they will endure for a principle and to many the principle at stake today is their right to live in the area of their choice. One has only to think back to "The Battle of Britain" to know what can be done by determined people. In our immediate neighborhood it might interest you to know that one copy of your paper now goes to four different households, another subscription goes to three homes and a third goes to two. Magazine subscriptions are passed through many hands and are none the worse for being re-read.

Perhaps when current Kelowna residents realize that boundary extension will cost them more in their own immediate taxes as well as a decrease in business they may regret their own selfishness at this time.

"LIVE AND LET LIVE"

BOUNDARY EXTENSION

The Editor,
The Kelowna Courier.

Dear Sir:
In your issue of April 16 we read "Kelowna Slew From Urban Sprawl," then reading the first sentence "The Great Kelowna Area Is Slew". On reading the Area Is Slew". On reading the above a friend of mine wondered how many visitors from across the line, and elsewhere, might just have picked up your paper and noticed what I have quoted and read no more as many people do. My friend and I had seen during the day dozens of cars from other districts. It is left to others to draw their own conclusions.

For myself, I agree with several other people whose attention I drew to this article. We were surprised that our local, and very good paper, had published it at all.

There is nothing sick about Kelowna. I have lived in it most of fifty years and for a "sick town" it has grown remarkably well. However, it did not grow into being a city with many parking houses and a large plywood plant because of the people who live within it but because of the thousands who live outside.

Is the author of this article trying to tell us that the 9,600 more or less people within the Kelowna boundaries require half a dozen drug stores and more than a dozen grocery stores to feed them, and how many of the Kelowna residents purchase from the farm machinery dealers and the feed and fertilizer firms.

I am drawing your attention to these facts because further on in Mr. Roe's article I find "People who live in bad sprawl areas are not doing anything for the people who live and pay taxes in the organized areas."

Might I suggest that in the case at least of Kelowna many of the residents of the city might find it hard to find the money to pay taxes if no one from outside the city patronized city businesses.

One cannot dispute the fact that some younger families living on the edge of Kelowna in the rural areas work in Kelowna, but they also spend most, if not all, of their earnings in the city. They do, of course, pay a much smaller tax to the province but as a rule get much better roads and are protected by the district police, not by the city police.

In another part of Mr. Roe's article we read that he took a drive around what he sees fit to call "sprawl" which he found pretty upsetting. It was a "crazy quilt pattern." Just where did he go, not in Woodlawn which is laid out in streets, not in Glenmore where we find the VLA subdivision laid out by fully competent men, nor can he find fault with the Meikle subdivision or the streets near and around these subdivisions. Nearly all of these houses have been built under the Building Code and passed by an inspector. If however, our friend had been looking at one or more of the subdivisions within the city where at one time there had been a nice house, trees and a pretty garden now we see ten or fifteen houses so close together if a fire started in one of our high winds it is likely that two or more would burn before the first one could be put out.

Now, in summing up, first of all, it is interesting that some of the citizens most interested in expanding Kelowna boundaries live well outside these lines proposed to be included in Kelowna and they live well outside at a safe distance, having moved out within the last few years. It is a fact one understands that in a few years something will have to be done about the present septic tanks, but this is not immediate and it will give a great many elderly residents in the south end of Kelowna a financial burden which cannot be met. These residents have put their entire capital into their houses and will have to move to lower tax areas.

One thing I have noticed in talking with people over the extension of the city boundaries, promoters of this scheme cannot seem to understand that some people prefer to live in the country on larger pieces of ground and do not wish to be huddled together and overlooked by others. It is not hard to realize that the whole article has been presented to the public by those interested in boundary extension and if the reaction of people who have read it is the same as that of several I have talked with then the article will have defeated its purpose. Most of the land desired by the city for purposes of so-called expansion has already been built on or will soon be built on so that all that can be hoped for is that these so-called "sprawl districts" will, if voted in, have to be given all city services, fire protection, water, sewers and police as well as roads and light. Not only will the taxes and service charges go up for those now residents but the taxes of those now resident in the city will also rise.

Lastly, in case some one may think the writer lives in the "sprawl" areas, he has paid city taxes for over thirty years and if they again rise will pay them even if he do so must forego other things. Having survived two depressions in Kelowna and two wars he has no intention of parting with an attractive city property for real estate subdivision. "A KELOWNA TAXPAYER"

OTTAWA REPORT

MP's Relax In Spare Time

By PATRICK NICHOLSON

What do our legislators do in Ottawa when they are not legislating?

Long though their hours of hard work are, most MPs require some form of recreation as a change of pace. One of the more popular activities is the Parliamentary Bowling Club, which has just completed its league and knock-out contest.

42-year old Murdo Martin, the ruggedly-built former firefighter who is now the CCF member for Timmins, led the team which swept all before it. Azellus Denis, who is the persistent and often witty brawler of Postmaster-General William Hamilton inside Parliament, proved himself the best individual bowler outside the House he has now graced for 25 years.

CLUB A SOCIAL MIXED

MP's wives as well as officers and staff of the House of Commons join MPs to make up the Club At Ottawa's Maple Leaf Bowling Alley, they meet every Tuesday at noon, and teams made up of two men and three women bowl two strings.

The champion team skipped by Murdo Martin also included Mrs. Simpson, wife of Conservative "Bud" Simpson, MP for Churchill, Manitoba; Miss Reginald Kourri, who is secretary to Murdo's parliamentary roommate, Arnold Peters, CCF member from Kirkland Lake; civil servant Mrs. Quirouette; and E. Broome, Conservative MP from Vancouver.

The Martin team won the Muloch Trophy for heading the league, coming from behind on the final round of play to tie on points and win on pinfalls. It also won the knock-out contest for the Conacher Trophy, named after the late MP and front-rank sportsman Lionel "Big Train" Conacher, who dropped dead during a Commons versus Press Gallery softball game here in 1954.

As no team is permitted to keep more than one trophy, Martin's team had to pass on the Conacher award to their runners-up, Azellus Denis won both High Single and High Cross and also led one of the better championship teams, as did Bill Anderson, Conservative MP from Galt.

Although that ends active bowling for the season, the official wind-up will be the annual Bowling Banquet and Dance early in May when the prizes will be awarded.

MIXED SPORTS PASTIMES

The next athletic interest for the more active MPs will be the softball team, which must get itself into form for its annual tussles against teams representing the Press Gallery, the RCMP and the Parliamentary Protective Staff.

Another form of relaxation enjoyed by many MPs is the House of Commons Social Club, which meets in the big Railway Committee Room on alternate Wednesday evenings. That club is open to all MPs and their wives, as well as to others who work in the Parliament Building, such as the Press and Civil servants. Paying a dollar a head to cover the cost of the cold buffet, MPs enjoy mixing with Ottawans there to enjoy a Community sing-song, often led with more enthusiasm than tune by Transport Minister George Hees; and they dance to a band of amateur parliamentary talent, including the serious looking Deputy Clerk of the Commons, Monty Montgomery, who leaves his books and his gown to twang his banjo.

"These activities give MPs a chance to mix socially, which is a very good thing," Murdo Martin told me. "Too often we sit opposite some man in the Chamber, judging him by his appearance and words as a dull stick. Then we get to know him bowling or at a dance, and we find that he is a prince of a guy."

Future Of Antony Armstrong-Jones Favorite English Guessing Game

By ADRIAN BALL
LONDON (Reuters) — The future pattern of life for Antony Armstrong-Jones, Prince Margaret's husband-to-be, is the subject of speculation and comment throughout Britain. Officially there has been no indication of the role the 30-year-old former society photographer will fill in the nation's life.

Convict Charged In Hotel Holdup

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A man now serving a manslaughter term in Oakalla Prison has been charged with the armed holdup of the Savona Hotel here last Sept. 19. RCMP said his name will not be released until he has appeared in court to face the charge. The holdup occurred when a masked gunman entered the beer parlor of the hotel a few minutes after closing time and held up the owner and a waiter. He made off with $180. Police announced the charge Tuesday night, after working on the case since last September.

Since the announcement Feb. 26 of his engagement to the princess, Armstrong-Jones has been living in Buckingham Palace helping to plan the May 6 wedding in Westminster Abbey.

REMAINS SILENT

He has given no interviews and palace spokesmen have parried all questions about his future status.

Only one firm decision has been announced concerning the future of the first commoner to marry the daughter of a British king in more than 400 years—he will not continue his career as a professional photographer.

His studio and apartment in London's shabby Bohemian Pimlico quarter now are closed and up for sale.

Armstrong-Jones' decision to give up his professional work has provoked adverse comment in some sections of the British press. Another question is whether he will be made a peer. There is a widespread belief the Queen will make her future brother-in-law a marquis, earl, viscount or a baron—four of the grades in the peerage.

One object in raising him to the higher ranks of the peerage would be to ensure that any children of the marriage would have titles of their own and not become plain "Mr." or "Miss."

Cyril F. J. Hankinson editor of Debrett's Peerage and one of the leading authorities on the British aristocracy says that to give Armstrong-Jones a peerage would be "detrimental to the young man's self respect." Titles he noted are given only for public services or for constitutional reasons.

Princess Margaret's children could be given a suitable title by royal edict even though their father remained a commoner. Another course would be to make her a peeress in her own right.

Critical Thinking Ability Hits Peak At Age Of 25

WINNIPEG (CP) — The elder statesman may have more difficulty than his younger protege in making those crisp objective decisions it has been suggested by studies conducted by the University of Manitoba's department of psychology.

Results of the research program show that critical thinking ability reaches its peak in the mid 20s is maintained for about 35 years then declines through the 70s.

Dr. John Zubek head of the psychology department said the tests consisted of two types of questions. Some were "emotionally loaded" and others were designed not to evoke any emotion. All the questions were tests of logical deduction.

Dr. Zubek said but some concerned sensitive topics such as race and political and social issues.

LESS OBJECTIVE
Older persons were found to be less objective—to be more swayed by emotion—than younger persons.

The tests also showed that elderly persons tend to be more inflexible. They are inclined to choose the absolutes of true or false rather than consider possible alternative answers. During the 3½-year project 484 persons from different occupational educational and economic backgrounds were tested. They ranged in age from 12 to 80.

A second project conducted at the same time on 634 subjects dealt with other aspects of the effects of aging on mental abilities.

DECLINE AFTER 40s
Results suggested that comprehension verbal fluency and numerical abilities hold up well until the mid 40s after which they decline. Reasoning memory and dexterity decline gradually from the teens to the 70s.

Men are better than women at comprehension, numerical ability and spatial ability, the tests revealed, but women are significantly better at remembering faces and names. No difference between the sexes was found in reasoning, verbal fluency, perception or dexterity.

Parent-Teacher Parley Opens In Penticton

PENTICTON (CP) — Business sessions of the three-day B.C. Parent-Teacher convention get under way here today with a speech by H. H. Simpson, president of the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation.

More than 600 delegates were expected for the 38th annual convention as registration began Tuesday night.

Educational Minister Peterson, who heads the list of guest speakers, will address the convention at a banquet Thursday night.

Delegates will devote this afternoon to resolutions and nominations. Tonight Alan Thomas of the University of B.C. Extension department will address delegates on "Wavelengths in Learning."

Annual elections will be held Thursday.

Chant Report Won't Be Ready For Six Months

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Chant commission on British Columbia education is finding the job tougher than it thought.

As a result, the report that will revamp the province's school system will be six months late. It was to have been ready at the end of this month. But Dean S. N. F. Chant, head of the royal commission, said Tuesday he had been too optimistic.

The massive research program being conducted is the reason for the delay, he said. The commission was formed 22 months ago. In its investigation it has read more than 1,000,000 words, listened to 367 books and visited 116 schools.

The three commissioners — Dean Chant, R. P. Walrod and John E. Liersch—are using 11 researchers on projects. Dean Chant said the report may be the most comprehensive ever issued on education in Canada.

It probably will consist of several books dealing with specific fields as well as the main report containing recommendations. Despite the six-month delay there will be enough time for the drafting of new legislation for presentation to the legislature in spring of next year, Dean Chant said.

Changes in the school system then could be effected by the following fall.

Adult Education Enjoys Boom Across Canada, Survey Shows

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In Prince Edward Island, trawler skippers went to school to sharpen their knowledge of navigation.

In Sackville, N.B., women took a course at Mount Allison University in how to keep their figures trim.

Victoria College in British Columbia offers to teach how to buy or build a house.

Jail officials and policemen may study criminology at the University of Montreal.

And at the University of Toronto there's a night school course in how to write for radio and television.

These are just a few of thousands of courses offered under the broad heading of adult education in Canada.

STILL LEARNING
A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press showed that more than half a million people are supplementing their education by studying subjects offered through universities, high schools and community programs.

Some 250,000 adults annually attend public lectures arranged by schools and nearly 750,000 take in educational films, dramatic and musical performances.

Not all are strictly educational, but like the National Film Board productions seen by more than 6,000,000 Canadians each year, they are informative.

Canadians, generally working fewer hours a week, have promoted a boom in adult education with a growing thirst for knowledge. For many it is simply a means of broadening cultural interests. Others, particularly those taking university extension courses, are looking to improve their job status. And for many, such as new Canadians learning to speak English, adult education is vital to economic security.

FEDERAL FUNDS
While education is constitutionally a provincial matter, the federal government has contributed to the cost of vocational programs involving some 300,000 Canadians and is directly involved in teaching Eskimos and Indians.

A number of national organizations, some acting independently of governments, contribute to the promotion of education of the adult population.

Hundreds of thousands of the 1,500,000 members of the 2,500 co-operative enterprises operating under the Co-operative Union of Canada are involved in educational programs, says Dr. A.S. Laidlaw, national secretary.

A large proportion of the 2,000,000 members of credit unions and caisses populaires are learning such things as thrift and money management through organized courses.

CLC COURSES
Some 23,000 members of the Canadian Labor Congress attended CLC schools last year and took courses in such subjects as culture and social legislation, political science and international affairs. Thousands more took courses given by individual unions.

Since 1917 some 150,000 persons have enrolled in veterans affairs department correspondence courses given free to veterans, servicemen and prisoners of reform institutions.

Women's Institutes run an educational program involving women in all provinces.

Immigrants are not the only people learning such basic subjects as English. In these days of compulsory schooling and exceptional educational opportunities, says the Saskatchewan department of education, it is sometimes forgotten that there are citizens, native intelligent, who as children lived in remote areas and who never had an opportunity to learn to read or figure.

SIGNED WITH X
It noted, for example, that in Prince Albert some 267 persons recently signed their name with an X on an application form.

This sort of situation, the province sponsors a course in "fundamental education" to meet the needs of "functionally illiterates" by teaching

During February and March more than 400 unemployed attended special classes in Edmonton in subjects including basic English, blueprint-reading, drafting, welding, plumbing, typing, diesel engineering and practical mathematics. The cost was divided between federal and provincial governments.

AQUATIC RIPPLES

Hello folks: Yes it is that time again. Time to think of our lovely park with its rose garden and lovely landscape as well as the centre of all summer activities. Your Aquatic Association. The more you use your Aquatic, the more incentive there is for improvement.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Aquatic Association held their annual meeting recently and have plenty of social events in store for you. Instead of having a "membership tea" this year, as in the past, it was decided to have a Saturday morning coffee party at the home of Mrs. John Ryan, 1665 Knox Mountain Road, on May 28. So any newcomers to Kelowna who would like to meet with the girls and join the Auxiliary, we extend a hand of welcome. More will be heard of this. May 18 has been set aside for the Fashion Show to be held in the Aqua Ballroom, with morning and evening showings. Fashions by Eleanor Mack. I've heard that we are having a representative at the Miss Canada Pageant. Kelowna brought honor to us in this respect once before why not again? Two of the main projects of the Auxiliary this year will be to purchase a 25 watt P.A. system for the Aquatic. This has been rented in past years at considerable cost. They also plan to buy a resuscitator to be kept at the Aquatic at all times. This is now the approved method of life-saving.

Please take a walk around your park and Aquatic the first real nice sunny day you have an opportunity, and I hope you will go home as I did, feeling blessed and grateful that such grace and beauty has been placed at our backdoors for your use and mine.

for your children and mine, at such a little cost to any of us. Be back next week, but for now cheerio. OGO.

Princess May Get Penny For Present

LONDON (Reuters)—A penny earned by Princess Margaret as he told her about this when they next met, a few years later, and promised her a penny royalty from the play — which unfortunately was a near flop.

Barrie forgot about the incident but Margaret did not. Barrie got a letter from King George, writing on Margaret's behalf, jokingly threatening to call in the King's lawyers if Barrie didn't pay up.

The playwright went along with the joke. He drew up the agreement.

The document told how Margaret had threatened him with "people called policemen" who were friends of hers and she would ask the biggest of them to smash and wholly destroy the so-called Barrie! If he wished.

The incident came to light after the death two weeks ago of Lady Cynthia Asquith, Barrie's secretary for 20 years.

Her son, Michael Asquith, said he had not yet decided what to do with the document or the penny but would discuss the matter shortly with his brother.

It was speculated both prizes would be offered to Margaret as a gift for her wedding to Antony Armstrong-Jones May 6.

Barrie later used both phrases

Barrie's name popped up some days later at Glamis Castle and Margaret said: "He is my greatest friend and I am his greatest friend."

Barrie died in 1937, shortly after the very official agreement was signed, and Margaret never got her just reward.

Sir James was invited to Glamis Castle in Scotland by the Duke and Duchess of York, later King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, for Margaret's third birthday party. The princess and Barrie sat next to each other and "hit it off immediately."

The Writers' Group of Penticton will be holding an informal evening coffee party on April 27 at 8 p.m. It is hoped that in this way some Okanagan writers may get to know each other and see something of the work being done in the Valley. There will be a display of some of the published material of writers attending.

Minosa Drives In Six Runs As Chisox Edge Athletics

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The first showdown in the rocky Colavito-Harvey Kuenn war was a flop, but another off-season trade pulled by Cleveland's Frank Lane paid a quick return — for the Chicago White Sox — as the American League completed its late season opening.

Minosa, the outfielder who has spent his major league career shifting between Cleveland and Chicago, drove in six runs, walloping a grand slam and a second, tie-breaking homer in the ninth as the defending champion White Sox beat Kansas City 10-3 Tuesday.

Chisox, traded by Lane to Detroit Sunday for Kuenn, was 0-for-3 and Kuenn pulled a leg muscle as the Tigers defeated the Indians 4-2 in 15 innings. New York Yankees, gunning for a comeback, beat Boston Red Sox 8-4 and Baltimore Orioles ended Washington's stay in first place after 24 hours with a 3-2 victory over the Senators.

FANS FOUR TIMES
The league drew 162,326 for Tuesday's games and the largest crowd, 52,756, showed up at double play.

Cards Break Through With First Triumph

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The world champion Los Angeles Dodgers are all alone in first place after their first run-in with San Francisco Giants, but the guys with the smiles in the National League are the St. Louis Cardinals.

They finally won one. The Cards, after winning 16 exhibition games against six losses, discovered all sorts of ways to lose in their first five regular season games. But Tuesday night, with injured Joe Cunningham back and Stan Musial slugging a two-run double, the Cards broke through for a 5-2 victory over Chicago Cubs.

The Dodgers topped the Giants out of a share of the lead with a 4-0 decision at San Francisco as Johnny Podres and Ed Roebuck combined for a five-hit shutout. And the Philadelphia Phillies won their first under new manager Gene Mauch, beating Pittsburgh 4-3 behind Jim Owen's thirteenth.

WINNER AT LAST
Southpaw Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell struck out 10 and gave up seven hits while becoming the Cards' first winner. He needed Lindy McDaniel's relief help in the ninth, but had a three-run lead after Bill White hit his first home run of the year in the eighth.

Wilmer also doubled home the Cards' first two runs. In the second, but it wasn't until the fifth that St. Louis drew ahead to stay. Cunningham, sidelined by a leg injury after playing in the season opener, was 2-for-4 and scored the run that broke a 2-2 tie. Musial's double off loser Sube Morehead (0-1).

The Cubs had tied it in the eighth.

GIARDELLO CONFIDENT

Capacity Crowd Expected For Middleweight Fight

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Joey Giardello, getting his first title shot in 12 years of campaigning, goes for the National Boxing Association's world middleweight championship tonight against rugged Gene Fullmer, defending his crown for the second time.

The 13,200-seat fieldhouse on the mountain-rimmed campus of Montana State College is nearly sold out for the 15-rounder.

The expected box office gate of more than $100,000 and television receipts of $100,000 guaranteed monetary success for Montana's first championship bout since heavyweights Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons battled in a 1923 financial flop. That nearly bankrupted Shelby, Mont., 200 miles north of here.

The fight will be televised by ABC starting at 8 p.m. MST. Fullmer collects all the TV pay-off and Giardello, veteran of 106 fights since 1948, pockets $25,000 plus $5,000 expenses.

Cowboys, ranchers and wheat farmers from hundreds of miles away flocked into this college and cow town of some 15,000 population. Special buses from Fargo, N.D., and Ogden, Utah, brought hundreds of fans.

Bozeman's accommodations bulged and the fight crowd spilled over into nearby towns such as Livingston, 26 miles to the east where Giardello, from Philadelphia, trained.

Fullmer, renowned for his superb physical condition, said "I figure Giardello will be coming out fast in the opening rounds, but I always go into the ring expecting trouble." The 28-year-old champion, from West Jordan, Utah, thinks the fight could go the distance.

CHAMP FAVORED
Fullmer is a 13-to-5 favorite. He has a 51-4 record with 22 kayos and was knocked-out only by Sugar Ray Robinson in 1937.

Giardello, ranked No. 7 by the NBA and No. 5 by Ring magazine, said he is in his best shape in years.

EUD Peckham, a curly-haired, friendly-looking man, has been boxing since 1933, could not tame the Indians' big chief, but he crushed the rest of the tribe.

The Peckham family, of course, would be Frank Howard, Frank Howard, in both of Spokane's runs, with a double in the sixth inning. He got a single in four trips to the plate. Peckham struck out six and walked only one in working the full nine innings.

MOUNTAINS RAINED OUT
In other games, Seattle Mariners smashed Salt Lake City Bees, 9-0, and Sacramento Solons edged Portland 3-2. Vancouver at Tacoma was washed out.

Ray Killebrew gave the Bees only four hits as his Seattle mates combed three Salt Lake hurlers for 11 safeties, including Bill Hain's bases-loaded homer in the sixth inning. Buddy Gilbert also got a circuit clout for the Suds, a solo affair in the ninth.

Sacramento whopped the Beavers with Bill Shields' pinch-hit single in the first of the ninth inning, which drove in Jim Bolger. Elmer Simpson limited the Beavers to six hits in winning his second game of the young campaign.

Five games are on tap Wednesday night, with Seattle at Salt Lake City, Portland at Sacramento and Spokane at San Diego for single encounters and Vancouver at Tacoma for a bargain bill.

BOXER DIES

Champion college boxer Charles Mohr, his brain deadened by blows suffered in his first and last knockout eight days ago, died Easter Sunday morning in Madison, Wis. The 22-year-old University of Wisconsin senior had lain unconscious in a university hospital for eight days, while thousands of students and well-wishers kept a death watch for the boy who was "too good for boxing."

Charlie, described by friends as a great college boxer who had lost his confidence, collapsed in his dressing room on April 9 shortly after getting off the mat from the first knockout in his life. He had lost his middleweight national collegiate athletic association championship to San Jose state boxer Stu Bartell, whose flurry of lefts and rights to the head stopped the bout in the second round.

Chatham Team Must Win Two To Meet Trail

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Hull Legionnaires have their backs to the wall tonight when they face Chatham Maroons in the fourth game of the Eastern Canada Allan Cup hockey final.

Maroons hold a 2-1 edge in the best-of-five series and are confident they will take Hull and go on to meet Trail Smoke Eaters for the cup at Trail, B.C., in a best-of-seven set beginning April 25.

Maroons' fans are confident, too. They contributed $1,100 to the Chatham Hockey Association Monday night to help finance the trip should Maroons win.

If Hull wins tonight the deciding game will be played here Thursday night. Hull pulled a fast upset over Maroons Monday night, scoring three third-period goals, to stay in the series.

Edmonton Takes Cup Semi-Final; Ready Now For Dominion Crown

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Oil Kings wrapped up the Western Canada Memorial Cup semi-final Tuesday and prepared to leave today for the Dominion finals in Toronto, taking along three extra players.

The Oil Kings, of the Central Alberta League, defeated Brandon Wheat Kings 6-1 in the seventh and deciding game of their best-of-seven series.

Shortly after the victory coach Harry Allen announced he would take the Brandon captain, right wing Ed Ehrensvorth, Brandon defenseman Dunc McCallum and Finn Flon Bomber centre Cliff Pennington to Toronto as added strength.

TIGHT SERIES
Oil Kings lost the first two games of the series in Brandon, then came back to Edmonton and took the next three straight before the Wheat Kings tied the series 3-3 Monday.

It is the fourth time in Edmonton that the Dominion Cup has been won since the series started in 1919. The Oil Kings of 1931 did it as did Edmonton Athletic Club Edmonton and Don Holmes, for 1934 and 1939. The only Brandon, played standout hockey 1931 without return.

throughout the western series, blocking opposition rushes time after time.

In Tuesday's action, Gillow made 26 saves and Holmes 25.

RAGGED START
Both teams started the game in ragged fashion with Edmonton holding a slight edge in territorial play and Brandon, as they have done throughout, holding a deciding advantage in positional play.

The Oil Kings caught fire after the first goal at 11:30 of the first period and in three minutes and 17 seconds grabbed a 3-0 edge. Vancouver scored for Brandon at 18:45.

The game became rougher as penalties were called and only one slight fracas broke out, at 12:30 of the second period, when Bruce MacGregor of Edmonton and Gordon Hice of Brandon engaged in a short pushing and shoving affair.

At no time after the first period were Brandon scorers considered as the Oil Kings pressed in play into the Wheat King end all night without return.

Italians Raise Hue And Cry Over Hollywood Portrayals

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—First the Indians were on the warpath over how they are portrayed by Hollywood. Now it's the Italians.

Recently the chiefs of Oklahoma Indian tribes issued a complaint to Washington that the redskins are always getting the western worst of it on the television and movie screens.

Along come the Sons of Italy with a similar beef. The group's Grand Council of Pennsylvania blasted the broad use of the term
"Mafia" in films and TV, especially The Untouchables series.

An official was quoted in Variety:
"If they are afraid to say
'Italian' or use Italian names for criminals, they say 'Mafia.' This is the same thing. By saying 'Mafia,' they are saying crime is controlled by Italian-Americans.
This is a dastardly attack and it is not warranted."

The complaint gets support from a famous son of Italy, actor Ernest Borgnine. Yet he is in the curious position of having to defend himself on the same score.

Borgnine told of receiving a letter of protest from a New York editor for his participation in a film about the beginnings of the Mafia in the United States, called Pay or Die.

HEROISM FOUGHT MAFIA
"I explained to him," said the actor, "that I was portraying an Italian-American whose very heroism almost stamped out the mafia in this country."

"He was Joe Petrosino, a New York cop who was the first one to suspect there was a criminal hierarchy and he convinced the commission to create the Italian squad."

Borgnine's own reluctance to defame the place of his parents' birth may even have cost him $500,000. Reason: He turned down an offer to star in The Al Capone Story.

"I just couldn't do it," he said.
"I've played plenty of villains in my day, but I could never portray a real-life person who I know had done so much evil and caused so many people tragedy."

There is another side to the argument. Hollywood has always got protests over how Indians, Negroes, dentists and lawyers are portrayed. It reached the point where the only safe villain was a white Protestant American—or a Russian. And even Russians are risky as heavies these days.

NO RANSOM
MANCHESTER, England (CP)
Manchester City soccer club paid £53,000 when they acquired Denis Law in a transfer last month, but a group of students couldn't get £25 for him. They kidnapped the football star as part of a charity campaign stunt, but the club refused to pay £25 as ransom.

An Important Moment That You Can Not Recall

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

What was the most important moment of your life? I can answer this for everyone of you and I don't see how you can dispute my reply.

CAN'T REMEMBER IT

It was a moment you can't remember but everything you have done and ever will do stems from that unheralded, unknown moment when you were created.

Let me tell you about it. It was the split second, the instant that the male germ was fused with the ovum and you began to grow into a human being.

ALMOST INVISIBLE

Any time you get to thinking

(that you are a pretty important person, a big shot, just remember that you were almost too small to be seen when you started out.

The original egg cell is a minute thing, so tiny that even scientists can barely see it.

After a month of growth you were still less than half an inch long. Yet even then you had a beating heart that was already circulating blood.

ORGANS DEVELOPING

Most of the organs of your body had begun to develop by that time. Your brain was taking form, too.

At your head end, you had a big hole with a bar beneath it, the hole eventually would develop into your mouth and the bar would become your lower jaw. Two tiny pits were where your nose would be.

Bulges on the side of your head were the only indication that you would ever have eyes.

There was some tissue on the side of your head which would become ears, but at this time there was no protrusion at all.

By the end of the second four-week period your internal organs were well started and your muscles and bones were formed.

It was during this time, also, that your nose and upper lip developed.

HOW JAWS GREW

The upper jaw developed from tissue growing forward from the mouth angles and the lower jaw formed from that bar which was present a month earlier.

You were beginning to look a little more human by this time.

But you still weren't much to see. You were still less than one inch long.

And that, my friends, is how all of you began.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. A. M. P.: I am sixty years old and would like to know what causes me to perspire so profusely. My clothing becomes wet and I think it is because of this, that I catch cold very easily.

Please advise me.

Answer: This may be a normal phenomenon. It may also be due to overactive thyroid, overweight, nervousness or some general condition.

Have your doctor check you over.

Opening lead—king of spades.

There are some plays that are easy enough to follow when they are pointed out, but which, in actual practice, are nevertheless overlooked by the run-of-the-mill declarer because they are so foreign to natural play.

Look at this deal where the king of spades is opened against four hearts. How should South play the hand?

Suppose he wins the spade with the ace. What does he do next? If he ruffs a spade in dummy, he will then be in a position where the opponents can cash twotrick.

And if, instead, at trick two, he leads the king of clubs, East can set the contract by taking the ace and returning a trump. West wins the trump and cashes three spades to bring about a two-trick defeat.

And if declarer adopts any other line of play at trick two, he also runs into a dead end from which there is no escape.

The solution to the problem, and the only way for declarer to make the contract, is to let West win the opening spade lead. It then does not matter what West returns at trick two, because South can no longer be prevented from making ten tricks.

Thus, if West plays a trump, whether high or low, declarer removes the outstanding trumps and has no trouble making the contract because he is still in command of spades and has the long diamond suit to run.

A club return is equally futile and so is another spade lead, which South can ruff in dummy. In the latter case, a club lead from dummy sets up the queen to provide a place on which to discard the remaining spade loser.

It is a rather unusual and unnatural play for declarer to refuse to win the ace of spades immediately, with dummy having a singleton, but since this is the only way in which he can keep control of the hand, it is essential that he refuse the ace.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW

Resist any temptation to "skip class" or let down in your efforts this day. Assume full control of your obligations and duties, carry on resolutely and you will be rewarded. There should be many advantages for those who are ambitious and enterprising enough to follow them up energetically.

The evening hours favor social activities, plans for home renovation and a variety of outdoor interests.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY

If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that, as of May 1, you will enter a cycle which is extremely propitious for both business matters and social prestige. The period between then and the end of August should also be favorable for financial affairs, so do make the most of all available opportunities in this connection.

Those engaged in the arts and sciences may gain unusual recognition as a result of unique and daring ideas during September, and home and property matters will be under exceptionally fine vibrations during August, late October and December. Sentimental relationships should prosper for several months to come, but be alert to a brief period of stress in late November.

A child born on this day will be a gracious and charming companion and a great lover of the outdoors.

Lumber Industry Weakens In B.C.

By NAT COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER, (CP)—The backbone of British Columbia's economy—lumber—is getting weak. Some observers say the industry is entering the most critical period in its history—and that means a critical period for the province.

The forest industry provides about 40 cents of every $1 earned in B.C. It is the province's largest industry in terms of employment, value of production and private capital investment. Its exports are worth nearly double the total exports of all B.C.'s other products combined.

Last year the value of production reached a record $637,715,000. The total amount of lumber cut was 1,049,000,000 cubic feet, second only to the record set in 1958.

UNDERLYING WEAKNESS

But these figures do not reveal the industry's weakness. It does show up in overseas exports which were down to 199,600,000 cubic feet—a drop of eight per cent from 1958. The shipments amounted to only 77 per cent of the record set in 1958.

Lumber producers say traditional overseas markets are being lost because of high costs and increased competition from other wood-producing countries.

They add that shipments of B.C. lumber to other Canadian provinces have also dropped sharply, chiefly because of increased freight rates.

And as other markets have dwindled, a greater proportion of B.C.'s lumber exports has gone to the United States. The industry is unhappy with the condition, fearing it means putting too many of its eggs in one basket.

U.K. MARKET OFF

One of the province's greatest market losses has been in the United Kingdom. In 1952, the U.K. took 775,000,000 board feet of lumber—one-third of its supply—from British Columbia. Last year it took 287,000,000 board feet from B.C., about one-eighth of its market.

The B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association told recent hearings of the royal commission on transportation that "unduly severe" freight rates had resulted in a 66-per-cent drop in shipments to other parts of western Canada between 1949 and 1958 and that shipments to eastern Canada were down 36 per cent in the same period.

B.C. lumber exports to the United States make up only about three per cent of American consumption. But this amount represents an increasingly large part of B.C.'s total export—41 per cent in 1948 and 50 per cent last year. This makes the B.C. industry extremely sensitive to U.S. market which is regarded as unstable because of its short-term buying policy.

Lumbermen say the only way to put the industry back on firm footing is to cut two of its biggest costs—taxes and shipping—and hold the line on wages.

Wages of 28,000 woodworkers are estimated at more than $500,000 a day and in the last 10 years the basic wage rate has increased by 60 per cent.

LABOR PEACE ASSURED

The question of wages usually provides an annual battle between the operators and the International Wood workers of America (IWA) but with the matter settled until the summer of 1961 by a two-year contract, the industry has recently turned its efforts to renewed attacks on the tax structure.

The provincial government collects more than $30,000,000—one-tenth of its annual budget—in direct revenues from the forests. Government officials estimate indirect taxes may raise this total to one-third of the budget.

Leading lumbermen say this tax load could drag the industry to a halt by discouraging new investment and braking its rate of growth.

Ray Williston, provincial lands and forests minister, says he's prepared to consider an investigation into the effects of federal and provincial taxes on the industry's ability to compete in world markets.

"This challenge is the most serious threat to our continued economic welfare that can be imagined at the present time," he said. "One thing we must not do is to kill the goose that lays the biggest golden egg we have."

Caesarian-Born Pigs Found Completely Free Of Ailments

GUELPH, Ont. (CP)—Pigs delivered by Caesarian section are being used at the Ontario Veterinary College here for experiments on swine disease.

Dr. H. C. Rowsell, pathologist in charge, says about 250 pigs have been delivered by Caesarian operations during recent months. They were completely free of common pig ailments such as virus pneumonia and atrophic rhinitis.

As soon as the pigs are taken from the sow through an abdominal incision, they are placed in sealed isolation units designed to assure they do not contract a contagious ailment.

The eventual aim of the program is to produce disease-free swine but the immediate idea is to provide pigs which have never been exposed to the usual diseases, and thus have not had the opportunity to build up antibodies which would give them natural resistance to the ailments.

They then are ideal subjects for experimental work since they can be infected and observed under controlled conditions.

Work on the pigs is being carried out chiefly by Dr. Charles Rowe and Dr. Thomas Alexander, concerned with producing disease-free piglets, and Dr. Mickey Savan, involved through his interest in virus diseases.

In the long run they hope their efforts will lead to the restocking of farms with disease-free pigs. "Eighty per cent of Ontario pigs are afflicted with virus pneumonia in comparison to 20 per cent a few years back," Dr. Rowsell said.

London's Face Changing But Not All For Better

LONDON (Reuters)—The face of London is changing rapidly.

A constant struggle is going on between people who want to put up office buildings with lucrative rents and those who feel concerned about architectural standards and the city's skyline.

Since the middle ages, London's skyline has been dominated by St. Paul's Cathedral. First it was the tall, spired gothic pile—Europe's largest church until St. Peter's was built in Rome. Then, after the great fire of 1666, came Sir Christopher Wren's great dome.

Dirty with a corrosive incrustation of grime and chemicals, St. Paul's still symbolizes London. It still commands the famous view. But today, multi-story blocks of offices continually threaten to dominate it with shapes which have been variously likened to up-ended egg boxes, beer crates, or slabs of perforated concrete.

The number of people working what Londoners know as "The City," a square-mile area east of St. Paul's occupied by banks, stockbrokers, insurance firms, shippers and merchants, has been increasing at the rate of at least 15,000 a year and now is somewhere around 600,000.

With London getting choked by too much office building, not to mention traffic and too many people the government has announced its determination to put an end to concentration of commercial development in the centre.

The Royal Fine Art Commission which has royal warrant to investigate any building scheme repeatedly has expressed concern over the "deplorably low standards" of many new buildings.

LIMITED HEIGHT
Many people think the most startling blemish added to London's skyline since the war is the 300-foot-high and 30-foot-square chimneystack of the Bankside power station.

The City of London Corporation has an agreement with the dean of St. Paul's not to permit buildings in excess of 64 feet in height near the cathedral. One 76-foot-high structure was vetoed recently.

Twenty minutes walk away beyond "The City" limits the New Zealand government is building a new headquarters—a four-storey base surmounted by a 20-storey tower which will rise to 225 feet. This is 40 feet higher than the Nelson column in nearby Trafalgar Square.

The London county council which governs an area of 117 square miles also has approved plans for a 370-foot-high 21-storey block of offices for Vickers Ltd. on Thameside at Millbank just beyond Westminster Abbey.

It also has approved a 322-foot-high block of apartments on the fringe of Hyde Park Knightsbridge but rejected a plan to build a 440-foot-high hotel in Portman Square West London because it would have over-shadowed and encroached upon the privacy of residents in the neighborhood.
